

2021

New name.

Damen Schelde Naval Shipbuilding continues its journey under a new name: Damen Naval.
New name, but no change in our naval excellence, worldwide operating portfolio, and our contribution to maritime safety and security

DAMEN NAVAL

September 2020. Australia's new Antarctic science and resupply ship, RSV Nuyina arriving from Damen Galati Romania in Vlissingen, The Netherlands, for the final steps before delivery to Australia's Antarctic Division. RSV Nuyina is truly a ship of the future. She has been designed so that it can support scientific research that answers the critical questions of today. But it must also cope with future research demands.

Damen Vlissingen, September 2020, The Netherlands. Due to COVID-19 the construction of the Antarctic Supply and Research Vessel (ASRV) Nuyina at the Damen Shipyard in Galatz could not be finalized completely. This will be executed at Damen Vlissingen. Once the vessel has been delivered in early 2021 she will be operated and maintained for the Australian Antarctic Division (AAD) by DMS Maritime, a wholly-owned subsidiary of SERCO. The state-of-the-art 25,000t ship is 156 metres in length and has a beam of 25.6 metres. She will be capable to carry out ice breaking operations in thicknesses of up to 1.65 metres at speeds of 3 knots.
